Sixteenth Sunday of Ordinary Time Martha and Mary. Lk 10:38-42

The Archbishop of Canterbury was rushing to catch a train in London. In his haste, he accidentally jumped on the wrong car and found himself with inmates from a mental hospital, all dressed in mental hospital clothing. Just as the train pulled out of the station, an orderly came in and began to count the inmates, “1 -2-3-4...” when suddenly he saw this distinguished looking gentleman there wearing a business suit and a clerical collar, and he said: “Who are you?” The answer came back: “I am the Archbishop of Canterbury!” And the orderly said: “5-6-7-8.” The point of that story is this: It is so important to know who we are and who other people are.

If we know what makes us tick, and what makes other people tick, we get along better. If we understand where we are coming from, and where other people are coming from, we relate better. There is more compassion, more empathy, and more kindness. That’s why in recent years we have heard so much about personality tests. Employers, counselors, and job-placement agencies use them effectively. You may have heard of the Birkman Personality Profile. Dr. Roger Birkman, a psychologist in Houston, TX, has developed a fascinating computer personality profile, which suggests that there are four different personality styles. I want to use these as a way to study our passage of scripture, this somewhat confusing Mary and Martha story in Luke 10. Let me outline them for us. See if you can find yourself or someone you know somewhere between the lines.

First, there is the action-oriented doer. This person is strong-willed. The autocratic doer means business and everybody else better get out of the way. Second, there is the detailed planner. This person “plans the work” and then works the plan – one who thinks things through in detail, plans ahead, wants things done neatly, orderly and systematically. The detailed planner does well, as long as no one messes up the plan. Dr. Birkman’s third personality style is the enthusiastic salesperson. This person has no plan, is a “people person,” operates on personality, and has the strong ability to wow people, win them over, and sell them on his or her ideas and dreams. The fourth personality style suggested by the Birkman profile is the artistic poetic philosopher. This person is more “soulful,” more tuned in to beauty, reverence, and awe. This type is creative, enjoys quiet and pensive moments of solitude, can tune in to the wonders of the universe, can experience a sunset or a Brahms melody and feel the presence of God nearer than breathing.

Birkman has developed an interesting way of clarifying these four personality styles so that we can recognize them more quickly and easily. He says, “Imagine that you have nine cats in a house and that your task is to get the cats out of the house. How would you do it?” Well, obviously the action-oriented doer would take charge and say “scat!” and the cats had better get out if they know what’s good for them! The detailed planner on the other hand, would number the cats (in calligraphy!) with neat tags attached to the right side of each cat’s collar. Then the detailed planner would make nine neat holes in the wall and number them 1 through 9. Cat One must go out Hole One, Cat Two must go out Hole Two, Cat Three must go out Hole Three, and if Cat Four runs out Hole Seven, then the detailed planner’s whole world is thrown out of whack! The enthusiastic salesperson would say, “No problem, piece of cake, I can handle this,” and then open all the doors and windows, get some warm milk and cat food, go outside and say “Here Kitty! Kitty!...” and convince the cats that they are a lot better off outside anyway. Meanwhile, the artistic poetic philosopher would say, “Why in the world am I worrying about cats?”

The point of Birkman’s computer personality profile is obvious: We are different, and when we recognize, understand, respect and celebrate our differences, we get along better. This idea is rooted deeply in the Bible and one of the key themes of Paul’s letter to the church of Corinth. Some are prophets and some are teachers. Some are action-oriented, while others are pensive and thoughtful. Some are poetic and some are autocratic. Some are loud and some are quiet. We are different people with different personalities, different styles, different temperaments. And, that’s okay! Indeed, it is necessary as long as we are loving and tolerant about it. As you read this reflection, especially the Gospel text of this Sunday from Luke 10, I want you to put on your amateur psychologist hat and see if you can psychoanalyze Mary and Martha and figure out what their personality styles are... and how their personality styles impact the story.

Remember the story with me. All morning long there had been a bustle of excitement in the home in Bethany. Jesus was coming for dinner. Martha was so excited. Since daybreak she has been sweeping, scrubbing, dusting, checking recipes, darting in and out of the kitchen, frantically preparing the food and putting the place in order for this special occasion. Every moment is precious. Time is a-wasting. So much to do. Then Jesus arrives, and look what happens. Mary whisks in to take over as hostess. She welcomes Jesus and the disciples warmly and ushers them into the living room. There is a certain urgency about the moment. The Master is on His way to Jerusalem and the cross is on His mind! He begins to talk to His friends. He has so much to tell them, so much to teach them, and so little time. They listen attentively, especially Mary. Mary has positioned herself at the feet of Jesus and is drinking in His every word. How good to have Him here! How good to hear Him again! How good it is just to be in His presence!

Meanwhile, Martha is in the kitchen, slaving away over the meal, polishing silverware, cutting up fruits and vegetables, checking last-minute details, doing the 101 things which in her super-efficient mind needed to be done. But all the while Martha is working feverishly, she is seething inside! Her indignation mounts. She gets more and more aggravated, frustrated, put upon, stressed out. “Where is Mary? Why isn’t she in here helping me? Who does she think she is, sitting in there with our guests, and leaving all the dirty work to me? Surely, Jesus can see the injustice of this situation,” Martha reasons. Finally, unable to contain herself any longer, her resentment erupts and she bursts out of the kitchen into the living room and makes a scene! She cries: “Look at this Lord. I’m having to do all the work here. Don’t You care that my sister Mary has left me to serve alone? You get on to her now. Tell her to get out here in the kitchen and help me!” But Jesus says to her, “Martha, Martha, don’t be so worried and troubled about so many things. Relax. Lighten up. One thing is needful. Mary has chosen the good portion which shall not be taken from her.” End of story.

Now, look at these personality styles. I hope you have figured them out by now. What about Mary? Do you have her pegged? Well, of course, she is the artistic poetic philosopher, who is thrilled to just bask in the warmth of that moment. She is stirred, thrilled, touched, and inspired by the presence of Jesus. How about Martha? Well, obviously, she is the detailed planner. She has planned this event to the last detail. She has covered every detail. She has worked her fingers to the bone in her super-efficient way. Yet, here in the story, Jesus rebukes Martha. It’s a gentle rebuke, but nevertheless He did speak words that compared Martha unfavorably with her less practical sister Mary... and the question that explodes out of this story is “Why?” Not for a moment should we imagine that Jesus was unappreciative of Martha’s intense desire for a job well done. Not for a moment should we imagine that Jesus thinks artistic poetic philosophers are better than detailed planners. No! Not that at all. If Mary had been seething, he would be rebuking her.

You see, Jesus was not concerned about what Martha was doing outwardly, but rather about what she was feeling inwardly! His concern was for Martha herself! He was concerned about her attitudes! How perceptive He was. How quickly He could size things up. In a moment with a brief glance, He could penetrate right down into the innermost motives. He could see right down into the inner recesses of a person's soul.

Let me say, this is no criticism of detailed planner personalities. We need them. Every church, every business, every family needs Marthas. But, when Jesus looked at Martha that day in that emotional scene, He saw some red flags, some warning signals, some danger signs, some destructive attitudes within her which were more harmful to Martha herself than to anyone else. Jesus loved Martha. They were good friends, and that day He saw in her some hurtful attitudes that were working in her like "spiritual poisons," petty attitudes, which can devastate and destroy the soul. Let's look at these dangerous attitudes which were in Martha. We may find ourselves, or someone we know, somewhere between the lines. When Jesus looked at Martha that day, He saw deep down inside of her the dangerous attitude of RESENTMENT. Martha resented Mary. In my opinion, there is nothing more destructive to our spiritual lives than resentment. It can absolutely ruin your life, and Jesus knew it. It concerned Him to see this dangerous attitude in Martha.

Secondly, there is the dangerous attitude of NARROWNESS. Martha is done in by her narrow perspective. Martha thinks her way is the only way, and she wants to force her way on Mary! Martha's view has become so narrow that she can't see any other way to receive the Master, but her way. She is blind to the miracle of "uniqueness." She forgets that we are all different, that we are individuals and that each of us has a unique relationship with our Lord. How often I have seen this "narrow attitude" cause problems theologically. Some people think their religious experience is the only valid one, and they try to force their way on everybody they meet. They don't understand that God is big enough to relate to each one of us differently, individually, uniquely, personally.

Third and finally there is UNKINDNESS. Don't miss this now. When will we ever learn? Martha tried to make herself look good by making Mary look bad and it "boomeranged" on her and she came out (in this instance) the unattractive one. Ultimately, it happens every time. Our harsh, condemning judgments come back to haunt us. When we are unkind to others, we are the ones who end up looking bad. Some time ago, there was an article on marriage, a rather routine article, except for one great statement. "If you are ever in a situation where you have to choose between making either yourself or your mate look good, always choose to make your mate look good rather than yourself!" Jesus would have liked that counsel, and He would have enhanced it by saying, "Always choose to make other people look good rather than yourself!" That kind of kindness "boomerangs" too. It comes back to bless.

The point is clear: What we send out comes back! If we send out unkindness, it comes back to haunt us. If we send out grace and love and compassion, those come back to bless us. In the Mary and Martha story, Jesus teaches us a great lesson about our inner attitudes: Beware of resentment, beware of narrowness, and beware of unkindness. Choose instead the way of grace and love and compassion.

TEACH US TO PRAY

The Catechism of the Catholic Church (2626–2643) teaches us that there are several forms of prayer. Two might be most familiar to you, prayers of thanksgiving and prayers of petition.

We pray in thanksgiving because we know that God is the giver of all good things. We thank God for our lives, our families, the world we live in, the food we eat. For what are you thankful? Can you make a list of five things? Ten things? Fifty things? If you named them all, how big a number would you need? Ask everyone in your family to add something to your list.

When we say a prayer of petition we often just ask God for things we need. But there are different types of petition. The Church reminds us that we should also ask for the grace of forgiveness, that God's kingdom will come, and for all that we need. The Lord's Prayer, the Our Father, includes all of these forms of petition: "forgive us our trespasses... thy kingdom come... give us this day our daily bread."

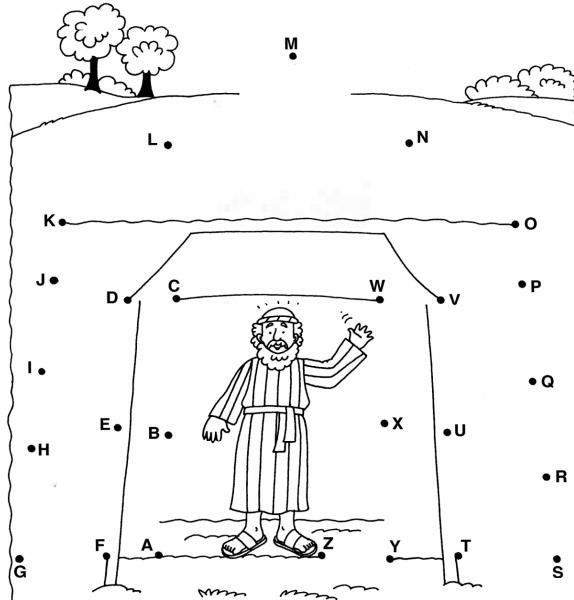

This circle is divided into five sections, one for each different form of prayer. Write the word "Thanksgiving" in the section with a T. In the section marked P that is divided into parts write "Petition" in the first part, and below it write "Forgiveness," "God's reign," and "My needs." Next week we will add three other types of prayer. This week, use your list of things to be thankful for in your nightly prayer. Try to use all three types of petition in your daily prayer. End your prayers by saying the Our Father.

Abraham and Sarah treated three strangers as guests, serving them food and waiting on them.

One of the strangers said that even though Sarah was old,
she was going to have a son.
