Thirteenth Sunday of Ordinary Time: (Mk.5, 21-43) Jesus' Power Over Sickness and Death

Our readings today remind us that our God is a tender and loving God. We all want to go to heaven someday, although none of us are in a hurry to get there. Indeed, someday we will die. There was a man who was a workaholic. And he paid a high price for his fanatical dedication to his job. He got to the point where his relationship with his family was suffering, he was nervous and irritable, had high blood pressure, couldn't sleep, and was generally falling apart. He went to see the doctor along with his wife. The doctor told him that he was physically exhausted, and that he had to get some rest or he wouldn't survive. He prescribed six months away from work and total rest at home. The doctor then wanted to talk with the man's wife, alone. He told her that her husband was critically ill, and his recovery depended on her. She had to see that he got all the rest he could, not to argue with him, wait on him as much as possible, and make life as peaceful and pleasant as she could. If she didn't her husband was going to die. On the way home the husband asked his wife "What did the doctor have to tell you?" She answered him, "The doctor said we were going to die."

So are we all, but hopefully not soon. We may make jokes about death, but we shouldn't take it lightly. Our eternal happiness depends on whether we are ready to meet our God when the time comes. So as unpleasant a thought as it may be, we must keep death in mind, so we are prepared for it when it comes. God didn't create us to live in this world forever. He created us to live with Him forever in eternal life.

Our readings today speak of these profound truths. The first reading tells us God did not make death. God formed us to be imperishable, in God's own image and likeness, but it was through the devil that death came into this world. This is obviously theological reflection on the first few chapters of Genesis.

In today's Gospel, Jesus shows that He has power of life and death and that His mission was to bring life to us. The life He gave to the little girl was a dramatic and visible sign of what He wishes to give us in an invisible realm, for the little girl would eventually grow up and die a natural death, but the life He wishes for us is eternal. There is a quote from John's Gospel which I love where Jesus says this explicitly: "I came that they may have life and may have it abundantly (i.e. to an extent that is overflowing)." (Jn.10, 10) We don't know what that might be like, but we have a sense of it in Jesus' resurrection. Heaven will be a sharing in His risen life, which is of course a sharing in God's own life. Pain and suffering will no longer exist, which today's Gospel also tells us. Life will be characterized by peace and love and joy.

Mark is showing us in today's Gospel that the way to this life is through faith, not a dead faith that only says, "I believe," but a living faith that we put into action. Notice Jesus said to the woman he healed "Daughter, your faith has saved you." And He said to the synagogue official, Jairus, "Do not be afraid, just have faith." Notice, the people who laughed at Jesus, i.e. those without faith, were put out of the house.

To some degree, we are all wounded. But we tend to hide our wounds. The woman who came to Jesus was a deeply wounded person. In her case the wound was visible. But people can be wounded without it appearing on the outside. They carry invisible wounds: feelings of rejection, failure, worthlessness, loneliness, bitterness, hostility. All of us need healing. And all of us can be healers. Our lives are continually touching those of other people. With a little sympathy, we can heal a wounded heart. With a little care, we can ease a troubled mind. With a little of our time, we can ease the pain of loneliness for someone.

From time to time, each of us should stop and ask ourselves: "What goes out from me through my words, my deeds, my relationships - hurting or healing?" Healing is not a task only for the individual. If we can create communities where people get together, work together, and support each other, then healing becomes a part of everyday life.

May we draw inspiration from the profound faith of Jairus and the woman with the hemorrhage. And may our lives be a testament to the healing, life-giving power of Jesus Christ who calls us to "just believe" and to extend His love and healing power to others. Amen.

Fr. Mark Kalema, Pastor

Psalm: I will praise you, Lord, for you have rescued me. (Ps 30)

Reflect & Respond to Scripture

First Reading: Our wisdom writer teaches us that God did not create death, rather, death entered the world from the envy of the devil. How should a Christian think about death?

Second Reading: Paul encourages the community of believers in Corinth to share with others out of their abundance as a means of establishing equality. What could you share with others among your family and friends this week?

Gospel: Mark presents us with independent healing stories of how faith in Jesus saves. What needs healing in your life?

GOSPEL

In today's Gospel reading, Jairus asked Jesus to come to his house. The daughter of Jairus was dying, and he knew Jesus could make her well again. While they were walking to his house, she died. Did Jesus give up? No way! Jesus told Jairus not to be afraid, but to keep believing that Jesus could help her. Jesus was even stronger than death. He walked into the house, held her hand, and told her to get up. Jesus admired the faith Jairus had.
