THIRD SUNDAY OF EASTER: The Restoration of Peter

Q: What kind of music should you listen to while fishing? A: Something catchy!

I guess the Apostles did not listen to that kind of music when they went fishing, as we hear their story in this weekend's Gospel (Jn 21:1-19).

The readings for the third Sunday of Easter provide a rich tapestry of themes, including witness, redemption, and the transformative power of Christ's resurrection, but I will try to limit myself to just a couple of points.

First, Jesus had a charcoal fire burning as He prepared to feed his hungry and tired apostles. John had previously told us about another charcoal fire in the courtyard of the high priest, where Jesus was taken when He was arrested. Peter and another disciple (probably John) followed Jesus there, and they were warming themselves by the fire when Peter was asked whether he was one of Jesus' disciples. It was by the fire that Peter denied he even knew Jesus. The sight of another charcoal fire must have brought back painful memories for Peter. But Jesus was not vindictive. Rather, he allowed Peter to reaffirm his love for Him.

Another idea is that John tells us the apostles had been fishing all night long and had caught nothing. But with the dawn came Jesus and a miraculous catch of fish. Any other author telling us about the night and the dawn might have simply been trying to set the scene for us, but in John, light and darkness are more than just window dressing.

Let me focus on the main point of our reflection: the restoration of Peter, after that night when he denied Jesus three times. It was said that making one mistake with Stalin was like mishandling a detonator—it would be the last one you ever made. We, too, sometimes write people off because of one bad move. But which of us would like to be judged on a single moment of our lives, such as the night Peter denied Jesus?

After what happened Holy Thursday night, we would not have been surprised if Jesus had written Peter off as weak, cowardly, and unreliable. Had He done so, most people would have said that He had no other option. After all, Peter was the leader of the apostolic team. He had set a terrible example for the others. Yet Jesus did not write him off. He didn't even demote him. And there were no recriminations either. Judas' betrayal was a planned thing, and was carried out in a cold, calculating manner. Peter's denial was not a planned thing and was the result of weakness rather than malice. Jesus, the reader of hearts, knew this.

After breakfast, He turned to Peter and said, "Peter, do you love Me more than the others love Me?" What a strange question to ask: "Do you love me?" Hadn't Peter proved beyond any shadow of doubt that he didn't love Him? Yet this is the question Jesus asked Peter. And Peter said, "Lord, you know that I love You." He sincerely meant those words. What's more, they were true. He did love Jesus. Jesus knew that there was another and better side to Peter. Strength and weakness can co-exist in the same person. Jesus called Peter forward. He asked him to declare his love in public, since his denial had also been in public.

Jesus kept no record of Peter's sins. But he did ask him to feed the sheep and lambs of His flock, that is, to love and serve his brothers and sisters in the community. That, if you like, was Peter's penance, the best way to make atonement for sin. As Peter himself later wrote, "Love covers a multitude of sins." (1 Pet 4:8)

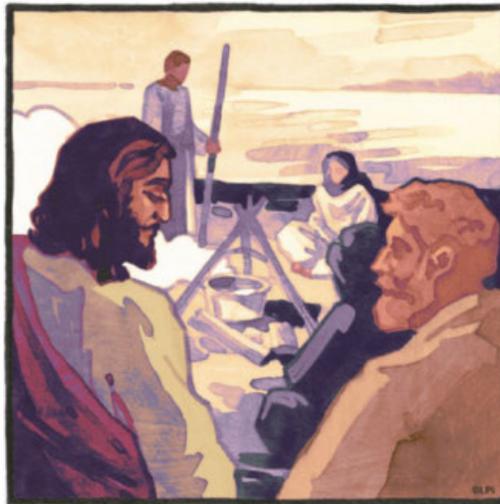

I'm sure that Peter never forgot that he had denied Jesus. Yet I doubt if it haunted him the way some people are haunted by their sins. He learned a great lesson from his fall—that he wasn't as brave as he thought he was. It's a far better and more salutary thing to learn a lesson than to be taught a lesson. When we learn from a fall, the recalling of it is more likely to evoke gratitude than self-recrimination.

Peter also learned a wonderful truth about Jesus: despite Peter's denials, Jesus still loved him, and that love brought Peter back to life. It's an amazing experience to be loved in one's weakness and sinfulness. To be loved in one's goodness is no big deal. But to be loved in one's badness? That's tremendous. That's what grace is all about.

Peter had the guts to get up again after his fall. We can imagine that he made a very good leader. A leader must be aware of his own weakness. The experience rid him of pride and blind reliance on his own resources. At the same time, it enabled him to understand the weakness of others.

And Peter came good. In the reading from Acts we see how he stood up before the Sanhedrin and bore witness for Jesus. Peter is a great consolation to us. Courage fails us all. In the end, we are all mere mortals who are inconstant in our beliefs. We must learn to forgive ourselves momentary weaknesses and failures. We must not judge ourselves or others by momentary lapses, but by commitment to our beliefs over a long time. Amen.

Read about Dianne*, a recipient of Catholic Charities' Giving Hope Fund: Dianne was working hard to maintain stable housing for her son, with support from Catholic Charities, when she experienced an unexpected personal tragedy and couldn't manage all her expenses. The Giving Hope Fund at Catholic Charities provided financial assistance for utilities needed to stay in their apartment. "I never had someone show me so much love and respect," Dianne says. Now she passes that love on, including to her son, whom she encourages to pursue his goals. "I want him to get something more out of life than what I had. My son is my pride and joy. I am forever grateful." Please support the Second Collection on Mother's Day, May 11 or anytime at catholiccharities.net/mothers

Today's Readings

First Reading: God exalted him at his right hand as leader and savior to grant Israel repentance and forgiveness of sins. (Acts 5:31)

Psalm: I will praise you, Lord, for you have rescued me. (Ps 30)

Second Reading: "To the one who sits on the throne and to the Lamb be blessing and honor, glory and might, forever and ever." (Rv 5:13)

Gospel: Jesus said to them, "Children, have you caught anything to eat?" They answered him, "No." So he said to them, "Cast the net over the right side of the boat and you will find something." So they cast it, and were not able to pull it in because of the number of fish. (Jn 21:5-6)

Reflect & Respond to Scripture

1st Reading Question: The Apostles "rejoiced" when they suffered public dishonor for preaching that Jesus rose from the dead. Have you ever found joy amid your own suffering?

2nd Reading Question: John has a vision of the whole created order worshipping and praising Jesus as the slain and risen Lamb. In what ways will you praise and worship Jesus this week?

Gospel: The resurrected Jesus reveals to Peter that the cost of following him and leading the disciples will be his own martyrdom. How are you sometimes challenged in following Jesus?

After Jesus rose from the dead, he must have looked very different. Jesus helped his apostles catch a lot of fish, just as he had done before. Jesus invited his friends to eat with him, and he still broke his bread to share it in the same way he always had. The disciples still recognized Jesus by the things he did.
