TWENTY-FIRST SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME:
Peter's Profession of Faith

In today's Gospel, we have an early example of an opinion poll, and it was Jesus Himself who conducted it. Even though it was a very limited one, it concerned a central issue: the identity of Jesus. Today we have so many kinds of polls. One thing all polls show us is the variety and often contradictory views people can have about any issue or individual. The poll in the Gospel this weekend, bears this out. We see that the people came up with a variety of answers to the crucial question as to who Jesus was.

The question Jesus raised with the apostles was not a tricky one or a trivial one. It was very serious, a question that resounds throughout the entire Gospel, concerning the identity of Jesus. Everything hinges on this. He didn't pluck this question out of the air. This question was obviously on the lips of everyone: "Who is this man Jesus?" Having heard what others were saying, Jesus turned to the Twelve and asked, "And you, who do you say that I am?" No doubt He already knew what they thought. Still, He gave them the opportunity to express it themselves. We can only marvel at how Jesus said nothing to Simon but waited for the Father to speak to him first.

It is important for us to come up with our own answers, to be able to state our own beliefs and values as Christians. It is no longer sufficient to repeat the official answers. We must make the faith our own.

All the readings this week bring us to the central question of Christian life: Who is Jesus Christ for me? They also remind us that every gift, authority, insight, and calling comes from God and must lead back to God. In today's Gospel, Jesus brings His disciples to Caesarea Philippi and asks them a question that still echoes in every human heart: "Who do people say that the Son of Man is?"

The disciples offer the popular answers of their time: John the Baptist, Elijah, Jeremiah, or one of the prophets. Jesus was clearly seen as someone extraordinary—a holy man, a teacher, perhaps even a prophet. But then Jesus makes the question personal. "But who do you say that I am?" This is not merely a question for Peter. It is a question for each of us. It cannot be answered only with what our parents taught us, what we learned in catechism, or what others say about Jesus. Each of us must answer from the heart: Who is Jesus to me?

Peter speaks for the disciples when he says, "You are the Christ, the Son of the living God." Peter recognizes that Jesus is not merely a wise teacher or a moral example. He is the Messiah, the Savior sent by God, the Son of the living God. Jesus then tells Peter that this insight did not come simply from human intelligence: "Flesh and blood has not revealed this to you, but my heavenly Father." Faith is always a gift before it is an achievement. We come to know Jesus through grace: in prayer, in Scripture, in the sacraments, in the poor, in the Church, and in the quiet movements of conscience.

After Peter's confession of faith, Jesus gives him a mission. "You are Peter, and upon this rock I will build my Church." Peter is not chosen because he is flawless. In fact, we know that Peter will later misunderstand Jesus, deny Him during the Passion, and need forgiveness. Yet Christ entrusts him with responsibility. This gives hope to all of us. God does not wait for perfect people before calling them. He calls ordinary, fragile people and gives them grace for the mission. Peter's strength is not his own perfection; it is his willingness to return to Jesus, trust Him, and serve Him.

The first reading (Isaiah 22:19–23) gives us an image of authority as service. Shebna, who held a position of power, is removed, and Eliakim is appointed in his place. God says that Eliakim will receive the key of the house of David. "What he opens, no one shall shut; what he shuts, no one shall open." The key is not a symbol of privilege for personal gain. It is a symbol of stewardship: the duty to protect, serve, welcome, and guide God's people. Jesus uses similar language when He gives Peter the keys of the kingdom. In the Church, authority must never become domination. It is meant to resemble the authority of Christ: humble, faithful, merciful, and directed toward the salvation of others. Whether we are parents, teachers, employers, ministers, older siblings, community leaders, or simply friends, every form of influence is a trust from God.

Saint Paul (Rom 11:33–36) gives us the right attitude before this mystery. After reflecting on God's plan of salvation, he cries out, "Oh, the depth of the riches and wisdom and knowledge of God!" Paul recognizes that God's wisdom is greater than our understanding. We often want immediate answers to our questions. Why is this happening? Why has God allowed this difficulty? Why is my prayer not answered as I expected? Faith does not mean that every question is instantly solved. Faith means trusting the wisdom and goodness of God even when we cannot see the whole picture. Paul concludes, "For from Him and through Him and for Him are all things." Everything begins in God, is sustained by God, and finds its purpose in God. Our lives are not centered on success, recognition, possessions, or control. They are centered on God.

So today, let us hear Christ's question anew: "Who do you say that I am?" If Jesus is truly the Christ, the Son of the living God, then He cannot remain only a name we say at Mass. He must become the center of our choices, our relationships, our work, our suffering, and our hope. How can we try to live these readings this week and beyond?

- From Isaiah—Let us treat every responsibility, privilege, and position of influence as a trust from God, using it to serve rather than control others.
- From Romans 11:33–36—When life does not make sense, pause in prayer and entrust what you cannot understand to God's greater wisdom.

May we have Peter's courage to profess faith in Jesus. May we use every responsibility as an opportunity to serve. And may we join Saint Paul in giving glory to the God from whom, through whom, and for whom are all things. Amen.

REFLECT & RESPOND TO SCRIPTURE

1st Reading Question

For disobeying the Lord, Shebna, the master of King Hezekiah's palace, is stripped of his authority and honor, and it is given to Eliakim. Are there people in your life or family that you honor and revere?

2nd Reading Question

Reflecting on the unimaginable depth of God's wisdom and knowledge, Paul asks, "Who has known the mind of the Lord or who has been his counselor?" What question do you have for the Lord?

Gospel Question

Jesus establishes Peter as the rock upon whom he will build his church. In what ways do you help build your church community?

God had sent great prophets to his people. Jeremiah, Elijah, and John the Baptist were faithful to God. They told God's people to love each other. But God's people would not listen. That is why God sent his Son Jesus to be your Savior. With Jesus' help, you can turn back to God. Because of Jesus, you can love others. Because of Jesus, you can look forward to heaven.

A Message from the Lansing Food Pantry

Dear Friends,

For 40 years, The Lansing Community Food Pantry, located at 2990 Ridge Road, Lansing, Illinois, has helped provide food for Lansing residents demonstrating financial need. Recently, some erroneous information was given by a Pantry Board member that the Pantry also provides food for qualifying non-residents who are members of Lansing churches that support the pantry.

We deeply appreciate the support that Lansing churches provide us. Unfortunately, limited resources dictate that our services must be restricted to Lansing residents only who demonstrate financial need based on income. The Lansing Community Food Pantry deeply regrets this error and we apologize for any inconvenience it may have caused.

Lansing residents who are presently experiencing financial hardship may apply for food assistance at The Lansing Community Food Pantry during our service hours on Tuesdays, from 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.
