OCTOBER IS THE MONTH OF THE ROSARY

In addition to the daily Rosary that takes place during the week, all through the month of October, we will pray the Rosary after 4:00 p.m. Mass on Saturdays and after 8:30 a.m. Mass on Sundays. On these special days, our focus will be praying for world peace, as Pope Leo has asked us all to do.

TWENTY-NINTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME: God and Caesar

Sisters and brothers, today we celebrate the Twenty-Ninth Sunday in Ordinary Time, and the Church also observes World Mission Sunday. These readings remind us that God is at work among all peoples, that the Gospel is proclaimed through word and deed, and that our whole lives belong to God. In short, today's readings remind us to be mindful not only of who we are, but also Whose we are.

In the first reading (Is 45:1.4-6), the prophet Isaiah speaks of Cyrus, a foreign king chosen by God to help free Israel from exile. Cyrus does not know the Lord, yet God works through him to accomplish a purpose of deliverance. This reminds us that God's power is not limited by our expectations, our borders, or even the people we assume are far from Him. God can work through unexpected people and events to bring freedom and hope. This week and beyond, we can live this reading by looking for God's goodness wherever it appears and by becoming instruments of freedom, encouragement, and hope for someone around us.

In the second reading (1 Thess 1:1-5), Saint Paul gives thanks for the Thessalonians, whose faith, love, and hope are evident. The Gospel came to them not only as words, but with power, with the Holy Spirit, and with deep conviction. Their faith became visible in the way they lived. That is what mission looks like: the good news is proclaimed, received, and then carried into daily life through loving action. This week, we can live this reading by letting our faith show in concrete acts of love, patience, and service, so that our words about Christ are supported by the way we treat others.

In the Gospel (Mt 22:15-21), Jesus is asked whether it is lawful to pay taxes to Caesar. His opponents hope to trap Him, but Jesus exposes the deeper question beneath their challenge. The question as to whether or not it was lawful to pay taxes to Caesar was a serious one, and it really put Jesus in a spot. If He said it was lawful, He would be regarded as a traitor to the Jewish cause and the Jewish religion. If He said it was unlawful, He could be denounced as fomenting rebellion against Rome. In His answer, Jesus implied that there need not be conflict between the demands of the State and those of God. The State has a role, but its power is limited and does not supplant God. From this principal, Christians deduced that they could accommodate loyalty to the State.

Today you can find people who enjoy dual citizenship; they are citizens of two countries. Every Christian has dual citizenship. Christians are citizens of the country in which they happen to be living or in which they were born. To it they owe many benefits. To its forces of law and order they owe the fact that they are able to live in peace and security. To its public services they owe transport, water, light, etc. In a welfare state, they also owe their education, medical care, unemployment benefits, and so on, to it. All of these benefits mean they are under obligation to the State. The legitimate State has rights, and Christians will respect those rights. They must respect its laws and rulers. They must be responsible citizens, and, as faras they are able, must play their part in making the country a good place for all its citizens. Failure to be a good citizen is a failure in Christian duty. To cheat the State is to cheat one's fellow citizens, and to cheat one's fellow citizens is to cheat God.

But Christians are also citizens of the Kingdom of Heaven. To it they owe certain other privileges, and to it they also have obligations. In many cases, the two responsibilities do not clash. But at times they may. And when they do, Christians will spontaneously know which comes first.
It may not always be that simple. What Jesus gave us was only a principle. He didn't give a detailed theory of political obligations or a blueprint for Church and State relations. Christians would have to work out the implications of it. In practice it is not always easy to say this is for Caesar and that for God. Life is a unity. It can't be split into two clearly defined parts, the secular part and the religious part.
However, history shows unequivocally that separation of Church and State is absolutely essential. But when Jesus said, "Give to Caesar what belongs to Caesar," His assumption was that Caesar's claim would be just. He wasn't giving Caesar a blank cheque.

Christians can sometimes be faced with a real dilemma: how to be a Christian in a secular world where the laws may often be unchristian. However, true Christians will strive to be good citizens of their country, and at the same time good citizens of the Kingdom of Heaven. They will fail neither in their duty to God nor to their fellow men and women. But as Christians, our first and deepest loyalty is to God. To God alone we render worship, but in other things we gladly acknowledge and serve the secular powers, praying that they will rule wisely and justly.

World Mission Sunday is the Church's annual reminder that the mission of Christ belongs to all the baptized. Mission is not only the work of priests, religious, or missionaries who travel to distant lands. It is also the work of every Christian who carries the love of Jesus into a home, workplace, school, neighborhood, or community. We support missionaries through prayer, encouragement, and the collection that helps the Church serve communities where the Gospel is being proclaimed and people are being cared for.

Mission begins with recognizing that God is already at work among people, as he was in the story of Cyrus. It grows when faith is received with conviction, as it was by the Thessalonians. And it becomes visible when we give God what is God's: our hearts, our choices, our gifts, and our lives. So, this week, let us pray for missionaries and the people they serve, support the Church's mission according to our means, and be missionaries where God has placed us. May our words bring hope, our actions reflect Christ's love, and our lives help others recognize the image of God in every person.

- Celebrating 100 years of World Mission Sunday World Mission Sunday was established by Pope Pius XI in 1926. This anniversary is an opportunity to celebrate with renewed missionary zeal. Last year, Pope Leo XIV appealed to us, "Please help me help missionaries everywhere." That's what World Mission Sunday is about: helping Pope Leo care for the 1,130 missionary dioceses and territories under his supervision. Our prayers and support will be a great help in bringing the Gospel of God's love to everyone. The second collection we take up today helps extend the Church's evangelizing work to missionary areas where the Gospel is being proclaimed for the first time, as well as to places where the Church is too young, persecuted or poor to sustain herself. Thank you for responding to Pope Leo's renewed call to help him support missionaries to the ends of the earth!

Dear Sisters and Brothers in Christ,

This year marks the 100th celebration of World Mission Sunday, a day set apart for prayer, reflection and contributing to the Church's mission of evangelization. This year's theme—one in Christ, united in mission—was chosen by Pope Leo XIV and it invites us to rediscover the profound unity we share in Christ through baptism. Pope Leo explains, "The more united we are in Christ, the better able we will be to carry out together the mission that he entrusted to us."

We also recognize that the Archdiocese of Chicago, through The Society for the Propagation of the Faith, has been organizing global mission support for 100 years. We are proud to say that, over the past century, our communities have engaged in forming missionary awareness and promoting a network of prayer and charity that connects our local church with communities in need throughout the world.

On World Mission Sunday, we stand in solidarity with ad gentes missionaries serving in 1,130 mission dioceses in areas that are often challenging, poor, conflict-ridden or remote. These missionaries depend on our prayers and financial support to continue proclaiming Christ and building His Church. Our donations generously given through this pontifical collection help missionaries share the greatest treasure we can offer: Christ himself and his Gospel.

Let us pray for the gift of young people and adults who will follow the example of our own Pope Leo XIV and leave everything behind to follow Christ, even to the ends of the earth. May we always place Christ at the center of our lives and our communities so that the whole world may believe. Wishing you every blessing, with kind regards, I remain,

Sincerely yours in Christ,
