ALL SAINTS DAY

Today we celebrate All Saints Day, honoring not only the saints whose names we know, but also the countless people who lived and died in God's friendship. They came from every nation and walk of life. Some were famous for their holiness; many were known only to God. Together, they remind us that holiness is not reserved for a few extraordinary people. It is the calling of every Christian.

On this Solemnity of All Saints, we have the profound joy of celebrating our brothers and sisters in Christ, the saints. Their lives remind us that holiness is not reserved for a select few. Through Baptism, each of us receives the call to holiness and discipleship. In other words, we are all called to become saints.

Do you ever notice all the saints we have represented here in St. Ann Church? There is the Holy Family statue in the back of the Church. There are statues of St. John, and we have the statue of St. Ann on the east side of our former school building. We have the statues of Mary in the Chapel and in our Church Narthex. We have wall mounted-images of Our Lady of Guadalupe both in Church and in the Chapel. We have several saints in the stained-glass windows; St. Patrick, St. Cecilia on the window above the main entrance of the Church inside the doors, and many other saints in the Church. There are several books that list over 7,000 saints and describe each saint's achievements.

In today's first reading (Rev 7:2-4.9-14), John sees a great multitude that no one can count, standing before God and the Lamb. They have come through great tribulation, and their robes have been washed white in the blood of the Lamb. In this vision offers hope, suffering and death do not have the final word. The saints' victory is not something they achieved by their own strength alone. They belong to Christ, who gave Himself for them and brings them safely into God's presence. Who could count how many people there were who have lived holy lives and gone to heaven throughout these past 2,000 years? I would have a hard time counting all the wonderful people I have known as a priest whom I'm sure God has welcomed into His kingdom. The Saints we celebrate today might not only be those who were canonized by the church, but also those we know personally and have touched our lives in a special way.

The second reading (1 Jn 3:1-3) tells us why this hope is possible: "See what love the Father has bestowed on us that we may be called the children of God. Yet so we are." Our deepest identity is not defined by our failures, our fears, or what others think of us. We are beloved children of God. John also says that what we shall be has not yet been revealed, but when Christ appears, we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is. Holiness is God's work within us—a life of grace that begins now and reaches its fullness in the life to come.

In the Gospel (Mt 5:1-12), Jesus shows us what that life looks like through the Beatitudes. He calls the poor in spirit blessed, because they know their need for God. He calls those who mourn blessed, because God draws near to them with comfort. He blesses the meek, the merciful, the pure in heart, and those who hunger and thirst for righteousness. He even calls blessed those who are persecuted for doing what is right. The Beatitudes are more than beautiful sayings. They describe Jesus Himself. He is meek and merciful; He mourns those who suffer; He makes peace; and He remains faithful even when rejected. The saints are blessed because they followed His way. Their lives show us that the Gospel can be lived in every circumstance in families and workplaces, in times of joy and sorrow, in quiet acts of service and in courageous witness.

The Beatitudes also turn the world's idea of success upside down. The world may praise power, wealth, recognition, and winning. Jesus calls blessed those who trust God, show mercy, seek justice, and make peace. This does not mean suffering is good in itself, or that we should ignore injustice. It means that God is close to those who suffer, and that no act of goodness, compassion, or faithfulness is wasted in God's kingdom.

God has called us all to a life of holiness. God has called us all to be saints. If we end up being pictured in a stained glass window in a church, that might be nice, but what is really important is that we be among that great number in God's heavenly kingdom. St. John tells us in today's second reading (1 Jn 3:1-3) that in God's love he has made us his children. We are not only called God's children but that's what we really are. We ask the Lord today to help us realize our dignity and our purpose to be God's children for all eternity with God in heaven.

On All Saints Day, we honor the saints, but we also ask them to help us become holy. We do not have to wait for a perfect moment or perform great deeds. We can live the Beatitudes in ordinary ways: begin the day by placing our needs before God; listen patiently to someone who is grieving; forgive rather than seek revenge; speak truth with kindness; stand up for a person treated unfairly; work for peace in our homes and communities; and choose integrity when no one is watching. When we fail, we can turn back to God and begin again. In these daily choices, we live as God's beloved children and walk, step by step, with the saints toward the fullness of life in Christ.

REFLECT & RESPOND TO SCRIPTURE

1st Reading Question
John sees a vision of a new Israel consisting of every race and nation who has suffered for their faith in Jesus. Would you say you have suffered for the Faith?

2nd Reading Question
John speaks of the "children of God" as those who have a deep abiding hope in one day being like Jesus. What do you imagine "to be like Jesus" looks like?

Gospel Question
Jesus teaches the disciples that God uses the poor in spirit, the meek, the peacemakers, the merciful, etc., to help him build the kingdom of heaven on earth. How is God using you to build the kingdom of heaven?
